From the Director

The BC Library is bringing back our "Bring Your World into Our World" displays. This is a chance for the academic departments to showcase what they are all about outside of their departments. Since libraries are all about accessing the world's information it is fitting that we provide these windows into the worlds of each of the disciplines in which our students can major. The displays will feature student projects and/or artifacts relevant to the areas of focus for several weeks of each semester. It is largely up to the department being featured as to what will appear in the display. So, you faculty members and especially department chairs, be watching for communication from Erin Loggins requesting your collaboration to create theses displays, or, if you want to get the jump on other departments and volunteer to start us off again, contact Erin at 423-775-7403, or eloggins4055@bryan.edu.

-Happening in the Library this Month-

Winter Wonderland. Stop by the library during the month of January to see festive winter displays and a selection of featured winter-time books and movies to check out.

Martin Luther King Jr. Day, January 16 -- Come see a display honoring the life and sacrifices of Dr. King Jr.

Database of the Month

Full Text Finder

As many of you may have noticed by now, the library dropped its subscription to Journal Finder last year in favor of EBSCO's Full Text Finder (FTF). FTF serves the same purpose as Journal Finder did, but in addition to the capability to search for both online and print journals, you can also search our eBook collection within the same database. Click the Full Text Finder logo above for a quick link to the database.

ATTN: Upperclassmen Working on Research Projects

Are you writing your senior thesis or working on a paper for the upcoming undergraduate research conference? Locking study carrels are available to you! Keep all your books and materials safely locked in one of these to avoid the hassle of hauling your books back and forth everyday. See Vonnie Johnson if you are interested.

NEW in the library

Whiteboards are now in the upstairs study rooms! Dry erase markers and erasers are available to check out at the front desk.
